Daughters of the Moon, Book #3:
Night Shade

Jimena was once the toughest chola in East L.A. No longer in a gang, she is still feared by many. Nothing scares Jimena. Nothing, that is, except the reappearance of Veto, who was once the love of her life. That terrifies her, because Veto was killed a year ago by a rival gang. Or was he? Jimena discovers that he has made a devil's bargain, which could cost both of them their lives.

My Personal Review:
Lynne Ewings Night Shade is a heart-racing book of a teenage chola from East L.A. who lost her love in a gang shooting about a year ago. Or did he? She comes to find out that he's not really dead. Or is he? He has made a deal with the devil that might cost both of them their lives.

This book is a story of love or death. Jimena has to make many choices: her old life in a gang or her new life being a Daughter of the Moon; the love of her life Veto or her new best friends; living the life or dying with her boyfriend. Is the risk of being with Veto really worth losing her family, her friends, or her life for? Jimena is caught in a trap and doesn't know how to get out this time. This book takes you on a wild ride through her journey of suspense, supernatural, and love.

Ewings series of Daughters of the Moon are all interesting but she put a lot of thought into this one. This is a very realistic fiction story. It has love, life, and people facing bad experiences that teens go through every day that a lot of books like these don't have. Teens will love it because they can really relate. I personally would recommend this book for people of the ages 13-19.
