From New York Times bestselling author James Brady—the story of Marine legend John Basilone, one of three main characters in HBO's The Pacific—Hero of the Pacific tells the dramatic, compelling, and all-but-forgotten life story of a small-town boy who became one of World War II's greatest and best-known heroes. His bravery on Guadalcanal and Iwo Jima earned him the Medal of Honor and Navy Cross, respectively. Once you read this powerful tale, you'll never forget John Basilone.

Profiles one of three main characters in HBO's The Pacific, the sequel scheduled for March 2010 to the incredibly popular 2001 mini-series Band of Brothers. Sorts through the differing accounts of Basilone's life and exploits, including what he did on Iwo Jima and how he died. The final book by James Brady, the Korean War veteran and well-known columnist and author of books that include Why Marines Fight and his memoir, The Coldest War, a Pulitzer Prize finalist. An incredible story masterfully told, Hero of the Pacific will appeal to anyone with an interest in World War II and military history as well as fans of HBO's The Pacific.

A hero doesn't have to be famous, a household name, president or go on the lecture circuit. A hero does the extraordinary because they have the courage, conviction and just plain guts to get the job done at the moment. Pick up this book, HERO OF THE PACIFIC and read about an every man, an American from New Jersey, a marine, John Basilone, hero. The man who would get the Medal of Honor for action at Guadalcanal and the Navy Cross on Iwo Jima. And who better to write about Marines than James Brady, a Marine and author of numerous Marine books. This is a wonderful book about amazing courage and should be read by all of us including the next generation. HIGHLY RECOMMENDED.
