The main focus of House to House is the 9th Infantry Division's efforts to clear the VC from southern Saigon during the so-called Mini-Tet Offensive of May 1968. The defense of Tan Son Nhut Airbase by the 377th Security Police Squadron, USAF, is also described, as is the wounding of General Loan of the Vietnamese National Police, and the deaths of five journalists in the Cholon section of Saigon. For additional information on the fighting in Saigon during Mini-Tet, see Vietnam, Inc. by Philip Jones Griffiths, Dispatches by Michael Herr, and After Tet by Ronald Spector.

My Personal Review:
A brutal and unflinching chronicle of house-to-house fighting in the Cholon District of Saigon during May 1968. A grunt's eye-view of war. Extensive interviews with 9th Infantry vets add depth and a 'you-are-there' feeling. Another great job by Nolan.
