My Personal Review:
So many children's stories have bland, predictable stories, but not this one. The story really holds your attention as it builds to the ending with a beautifully decorated Christmas tree. It's a great introduction to colors as each animal brings an ornament of a different color and describes something that is that color. It's also a good animal book since it shows many forest animals. The pages have are embossed with texture so it really engages the child. The illustrations are very well done and not at all cartoony like some kids books. Overall, this book is definitely worth the money and I think it's a 5 star children's book.
