A charming and moving novel about female friendship and the experiences that knit us together— even when we least expect it. Walker and Daughter is Georgia Walkers little yarn shop, tucked into a quiet storefront on Manhattans Upper West Side. The Friday Night Knitting Club was started by some of Georgias regulars, who gather once a week to work on their latest projects and to chat— and occasionally clash— over their stories of love, life, and everything in between. Georgia has her hands full, juggling the demands of running the store and raising her spunky teen daughter, Dakota, by herself. Thank goodness for Anita, her mentor and dear friend, and the rest of the members of the knitting club— who are just as varied as the skeins of yarn in the shops bins. Theres Peri, a prelaw student turned handbag designer; Darwin, a somewhat aloof feminist grad student; and Lucie, a petite, quiet woman who harbors some secrets of her own. However, unexpected changes soon throw these womens lives into disarray, and the shops comfortable world gets shaken up like a snow globe. James, Georgias ex, decides that he wants to play a larger role in Dakotas life— and possibly Georgias as well. Cat, a former friend from high school, returns to New York as a rich Park Avenue wife and uneasily renews her old bond with Georgia. Meanwhile, Anita must confront her growing (and reciprocated) feelings for Marty, the kind neighborhood deli owner. And when the unthinkable happens, they realize what theyve created: not just a knitting club, but a sisterhood

My Personal Review:
